

Dictation Contest (PRJr 初級) No. 86

Hey, everyone!

Let's read another funny story.

It was Kipper's birthday. Kipper wanted a party. Everyone wanted to come. Biff put up balloons. Everyone came to the party. Dad wanted to play a game but Kipper put the television on. "Oh no!" said mum. "What a mess!" The children played with the bubbles. "What a good party!" Everyone said.

Okay guys, see you next time.

Dictation Contest (PR1 中級) No. 86

(No way!)

Oh, hey guys!

Are you ready to continue?

Luke and his friends climb aboard the Millennium Falcon and blast off. Imperial TIE Fighters chase them, but Han quickly engages the ship's hyperdrive. Soon the Falcon is traveling at the speed of light. The heroes race across the galaxy only to discover that Alderaan is gone – destroyed by the Death Star! Suddenly, the giant space station pulls them in with a powerful tractor beam.

Oh, I've got a bad feeling about this.

Alright, guys, see you next time.

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 86

Hey, guys! How are you doing?

Hope you're all still staying healthy and safe. I have some more astronomical news for you here so take a listen to this:

A United Arab Emirates spacecraft rocketed away into blue skies July twentieth on a seven-month journey to Mars, kicking off the Arab world's first interplanetary mission. The liftoff of the Mars orbiter named Amal, or Hope, from Japan's Tanegashima Space Center marked the start of a rush to fly to Earth's neighbor that includes attempts by China and the US. The launch had been delayed for five days because of stormy weather. Hope is set to reach Mars in February 2021, the year the UAE celebrates fifty years since the country's formation.

Ah, Japan and the UAE, that's an interesting collaboration. Though considering how advanced Dubai and other cities are, I'm surprised the launch didn't take place in the UAE itself. Hmm, why do you think that is?

Alright, guys, as always, study hard, stay safe, and I'll see you soon.